INTRODUCTION

My name is Tim Smith, and I'm a designer and frontend developer based in St. Paul, Minnesota. I bridge the gap between designers and backend developers.

I design and build sites and interfaces by writing standards-based markup and CSS. I help lead collaboration between engineering and design teams, and help maintain or create a style guide for UI components and frontend markup.

SKILLS

Design with a focus on web applications and user experience; front-end development with a focus on standards-based markup and (S)CSS architecture; Git; presentational JavaScript (including jQuery and some CoffeeScript); some experience with Ruby, PHP, Angular, and React.

SIDE PROJECTS

Writer of The Bold Report
theboldreport.net

My writing place for design, development, technology, podcasts, Apple, and more.
